THE HERITAGE

Hold me not boastful that I take a pride
In what my forefathers have achieved;
I honor, not myself, but those who gave
A priceless heritage on which to build
Not selfishness, for they knew sacrifice,
Not cowardice, but courage for the right,
Not boldness, but a love of high ideals,
And reverence for things to be revered,
Heir to these qualities, so may I prove
The great foundation of my life today,
Which by the toil of patriots has been formed.

November 21, 1620, the Mayflower came to anchor in Cape Cod Harbor, sixty-six days out of Plymouth, England. This vessel was rated at 220 tons and is said to have been about 90 feet long, 24 feet wide, and operated by a crew of some fifteen or twenty men. There were 102 passengers on board, and as soon as the boat came to anchor a compact for the government of the new colony was drawn up and signed by men of the colony, forty-one in number. The compact is brief, but it contains the root out of which sprang the CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES, for it embodies the first true democratic ideas of government.

BREWSTER FAMILY

ELDER WILLIAM BREWSTER was born during the last half of the year 1566, or the first half of 1567. The date of his birth is determined by an affidavit made at Leydon, Holland June 25, 1609, in which his wife Mary and son Jonathan declare their ages to be respectively 42- 40- and 16 years. (Ref: New England Register Vol. 18 p. 20).

“Bradford says that he was near fourscore years of age, when he dyed.” The place of his birth is not known, but is supposed to have been Scrooby in Nottinghamshire, England. His father William Brewster was appointed by Bishop Sandy, in Jan. 1575-76, receiver of Scrooby and Bailiff of the Manor house in that place, belonging to the Archbishop, to have life tenure of both offices.

William Brewster matriculated at Peterhouse, Cambridge Dec. 3, 1580, but it does not appear that he remained there long enough to take his degree. He is next mentioned as a discrete and faithful assistant of William Davison, Secretary of State to Queen Elizabeth, accompanying that Gentleman on his Embassy to the Netherlands in August 1685, and serving him at Court, after his return, until his downfall in 1587. After the retirement of Davidson, Brewster returned to Scrooby, where he lived, “in good esteeme amongst his friends.” In 1590 he was appointed administrator of the estate of his father, who died in the summer of that year, leaving a widow Prudence. His father was “Post”, at Scrooby at the time of his death, and it is said that the Elder’s grandfather held the same office. He was appointed to the office, which he held until Sept. 30, 1607. His residence at Scrooby was the old Manor House. In this house the members of the Pilgrim Church were accustomed to meet on the Lord’s Day, where Brewster, “with great love entertained them when they came making provisions for them to his great charge.”

The Pilgrims attempting to remove to Holland in the latter part of 1607, were imprisoned at Boston, through the treachery of the Master of the ship, that was engaged to transport them.

Bradford says that, "Brewster was ye Chiefe of those that were taken at Boston, England and suffered ye greatest loss, and ye seven that were kept longest in prison, and afterwards bound over ye assises." Through Bradford also we learn that Brewster, after reaching Holland, suffered many hardships and spent most of his means in providing for his many children. He was not so well fitted as the other Pilgrims, for the hard labor, which became their common lot, yet he bore his condition cheerfully. During the latter part of the twelve years spent in Holland, he increased his income very much by teaching and by the profits from a Printing Press, which he by the help of some friends, set up at Leyden. At the end of that time for sundrie weight and solid reasons, which are duly set forth in Bradford's History of the Pilgrims, among which was a true Missionary spirit, the church at Leyden, resolved to emigrate to Virginia. Brewster, the Elder of the church, who had been chosen to that office during the Pilgrims' stay at Leyden, was desired by those chosen to go first, "to go with them while John Robinson, the Pastor, stayed with the majority who should follow later." Thus it happened that we find Elder Brewster, his wife Mary and two young sons among the passengers of that now famous vessel the "Mayflower", which dropped anchor in Plymouth harbor Dec. 16, 1620 (old style). "At Plymouth, Mass. Brewster bore an important part in establishing the Pilgrim republic, not shrinking from even the severest manuel labor, and when the church had no other minister, he taught twice every Sabath, and ye both powerfully and profitably to ye great contentment of ye hearers." His wife Mary, whose maiden name was not known, died at Plymouth in New England Apr. 17, 1627. Bradford says that though she died long before her husband, yet she dyed aged. Elder Brewster survived his wife many years and dyed at Plymouth, Mass. the 10th of April 1644.

COLE FAMILY

JAMES COLE of Plymouth, Mass. The earliest information obtained of James Cole whose name stands at the head of the family in America dates back from 1616, when he was living at Highgate, a suburb of London, England. He is spoken of as a great lover of flowers and it is probably due to this fact, that he became acquainted with and married Mary Lobel, a daughter of the noted botanist and physician, Mathieu Lobel. "Mathieu Lobel was born in Lille in 1538 and son of Jean De Lobel, a distinguished lawyer. Mathieu was a physician at Montpelier, Germany, Italy and Switzerland. He also practised medicine in Antwerp being attached as physician to William of Orange, from Antwerp he came to London, and became physician to James I. He died in Highgate, London Mar. 2, 1616."

James Cole and Mary Lobel were married in 1624. Their first children James and Hugh were probably born in London. They came to Saco, Maine in 1632 and the following year 1633, located in Plymouth, Mass. where he was admitted freeman the same year. He was known as a sailor. He had a grant of a ten acre lot of land Jan. 2, 1637. On tax list of Plymouth in 1634. His dwelling stood on the lot next below the Baptist church. He was the first settler on "Cole Hill", the first burial ground of the Pilgrims. This land probably included the ground upon which rests Plymouth Rock. In Sept. 1641, he had a grant of fifty acres of land at Lakenham Meadow. He was surveyor of highways in 1641-42-51-52. Constable 1641-44. In 1637 his name appears upon a list of volunteers against the Pequot Indians. Soon after his arrival at Plymouth he opened the first Inn or Public house in Plymouth and one of, if not the first Public House in New England. This house was kept as a Public House by him and his son James until 1698. In 1668 he sold to his son James the land down to and including the lot upon which stands the Baptist Church. I have been unable to find record of his death, or his wife Mary.

Their children were:

2. I. James, born 1625 in London, England; m. Dec. 23, 1654 Mary Tilson; m. (2) Abigail Davenport.
- *3. II. Hugh, born 1627 in London; m. Mary Foxwell.
4. III. John, born Nov. 21, 1637 Plymouth, Mass.; m. Nov. 21, 1667 Elizabeth Rydell.
5. IV. Mary, born 1639; m. John Almy. He died Oct. 1, 1676. Married 2nd John Pocte. She died without children.

*3. Hugh² (*James*¹) was born in London, England in 1637. He came with his father to Plymouth, Mass. 1633 and was admitted freeman in 1657 in Plymouth, Mass. He married first Jan. 8, 1654 Mary Foxwell, daughter of Richard and Ann (Shelly) Foxwell of Barnstable, Mass. She was born at Scituate, Mass. Aug. 17, 1635 and died at Swansea, Mass. Married second Jan. 1, 1689, to Elizabeth widow of Jacob Cook, daughter of Thomas and Ann Lettuce. He married third Jan. 30, 1694 Mary, widow of Dea. Ephriam Morton and daughter of Robert and Judith Shelly. He was a surveyor of highways at Barnstable, Mass. and granted 100 acres of land at Acushanett. In 1667 with others he purchased of King Phillip 500 acres of land on the west bank of what was named for him Cole's River. He was a shipwright and Civil Engineer and many of the tracts of land at Swansea were surveyed by him. He was selectman of Swansea for many years. Representative, and Deputy to the General Court in 1673-74-75-80-83-84-85-86 and 89. He was for years the friend of King Phillip (the Indian Chief) having requested by the Plymouth Colony, Council to visit King Phillip and report the conditions made the following report: "Swansea, April 1, 1671, Most Honorable Sirs: Yours, I received this day whereby I preceive you desire to know what posture the Indians are in. I do not find them to continue in a posture of War, as they have been. I went to Mount Hope last second day on purpose to see their proceeding and was in many of their houses, but saw nothing as intending to War. But asking them of their reason of continuing together at Mt. Hope, they answered, it was to see Phillip's child buried, and I have seen some return, but the greater part of them are together, and they gave as the reason because the wind does so blow, against them, they cannot go home with their canoes. Rest assured I am yours to command what I am able."

Hugh Cole

In June 1675 at the commencement of the war with King Phillip, two of Hugh Cole's sons were made prisoners by the Indians and taken to Phillip at Mt. Hope. Phillip ordered them set at liberty because as he said Hugh Cole had always been his friend. He sent word to Hugh that he could no longer restrain his warriors, and for him to take his family and immediately removed to R.I. This he did, and one hour afterwards his home was in flames. After leaving his home he located at Portsmouth, R.I. where on Oct. 12, 1675 he was granted liberty to use some of the windfalls that are down to build a small farm and to make wheels for the use of the townsmen for their money. After the war his election as representative was always spoken of as Sergeant. After the close of the war, he returned to Swansea and built a house a few rods from where Miss Abby Cole now lives (1908). He died in Swansea on Jan. 26, 1699-1700.

He was a civil engineer and surveyor at the commencement of the Revolution and held a commission as Magistrate from the crown, and under the Oath of office was disposed to enforce the law and received a notice from town committee to leave the township. One of his sons accepted the commission as Captain in the British Army. After the first year of the war, he became a staunch supporter of the Revolutionary cause and three of his sons served as soldiers in the Shaftsbury Company, including his son David, who had accepted a commission in the British Army.

Upon his gravestone in Shaftsbury, Vt. appears the following:

"You see place where I am laid,
Death is a debt that must be paid,
And as by me you find it's true,
And time will prove it so with you,
Let not your time be run to waste,
In vain delight to please the taste,
But for another world prepare,
For time is short, you must be there."

HARDING FAMILY

The history of the Harding family in America is a history of the pioneers. From the time of the landing of Gov. Gorge's party on the bleak and almost unknown shore of the new world in 1623, when the first member of the family found a foot-hold on American soil. Among the first settlers in any part of the country, there has been a Harding.

Richard Harding was one of the original settlers of Braintree, Mass. The head of the line so far as can be traced by public records was:

1. JOHN HARDING of Northampton, England whose will was dated in 1636, in which was granted certain real and personal property to his brother William and to his sons Richard, Amos, John, Lemuel and Oliver. This will was filed Mar. 3, 1637 and contains a notation that the testator died Jan. 14, 1637. The will mentions that the testator was then in his 70th year, thus fixing the date of his birth as 1567. He was undoubtedly a husbandman and a direct descendant of Fitz Harding. It also appears that he was an elder brother of William Harding, the father of Mary, afterwards Lady Gorges. He was the father of the following children:

2. I. Richard came to America in 1623 and settled at Braintree, Mass., m. Elizabeth Adams.
- *3. II. Joseph came in 1623; m. Martha Doane of Plymouth, Mass.
4. III. John came in 1623; settled at Weymouth, Mass.; m. Mary —.
5. IV. Lemuel.

*3. Joseph² (*John*¹) came to New England in 1623 and settled at Braintree, Mass., as his name appears on the records. Was probably a "Mariner", engaged in fishing and after his marriage in 1624 to Martha Doane of Plymouth, he removed to Cape Cod. He died in 1630 and left a widow Martha, who died at Plymouth in 1633, leaving only personal property, in that jurisdiction inventoried Oct. 8, 1633 by James Hurse, Francis Cook and John Doane, at 20, 18, 6, and a young son Joseph to the care of her brother John Doane.

Joseph Harding was a member of the Gov. Gorges party, which was abandoned by him, and he removed to Plymouth. His sons completed at Duxbury and Eastham, returning to Braintree to occupy their partrimonial estate. So far as the records reveal, there were two children.

In 1864 he was elected to Congress and re-elected in 1866. He did much for the development of the western part of the state in the construction of railroads, "The Peoria & Oquawka" (now a part of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy), being one of the lines constructed by him. He left a fortune of about $2,000,000 and before his death, endowed a professorship in Monmouth College. He died July 19, 1874. (Ref. Hist. & Encyclopedia of Ill. and Hist. of Warren Co. Ill. p. 220).

Abner Clark Harding and his wife Rebecca (Liebnick) Harding had son:

45. George Franklin Harding⁹ (Abner Clark,⁸ Nathan,⁷ Nathan,⁶ Nathan,⁵ Amaziah,⁴ Joseph,³ Joseph,² *John*¹) was born in Lewisburg, Pa., Oct. 1, 1830. He was educated at Knox College and Harvard University, being graduated at the latter in 1848. He studied law at Harvard and obtained the degree of L.L.B. in 1851 and began the practice of his profession in Peoria, Ill. He practiced with Abraham Lincoln in Peoria and was a partner of Robert G. Ingersoll and Judge Norman H. Purple.

When Lincoln spoke at a political meeting in 1858, a mob was formed to attack him. Mr. Harding and others organized a body-guard and attending Lincoln at all the joint debates with Douglas in their memorable campaign for United States Senator.

In 1853-54 in association with his father and others, Mr. Harding was interested in the construction of a railroad from Galesburg, Ill. to Burlington, Iowa, which later became the Chicago, Burlington & Quincey railroad. This was the beginning of his legal training in railroad work, which made him one of the ablest lawyers of the Illinois bar. In 1859 he was Chief Western Counsel in the Hussey Manny McCormick litigation over reaping-machine patents. The death of his father left him in comfortable circumstances financially and thereafter much of his legal business was undertaken in behalf of the public interest. In 1869-71 he was largely responsible for the Illinois law limiting railroad passengers fares to three cents a mile, which was the first law in the United States regulating railroad charges.

In 1883, he became interested in enforcing the railroad discrimination and over-charge laws, and succeeded in compelling the Railroad Warehouse Commission and the railroads as well, to obey laws with which they had been in conflict for fifteen years. He was identified with the Illinois Central lake front suit, which resulted in the recovery for the city of Chicago of the lake front property, worth many millions of dollars.

During 1898-1908 he took an important part in changing the street car situation in Chicago. The companies were endeavoring to secure a long extension of their franchise at the old rate of pay, to the city, with little improvement in service. Mr. Harding backed by a western syndicate, offered to purchase the car lines, at a fair appraised valuation, removal them, pay the city $5,000,000 a year, furnish first class service with universal transfers and provide for municipal ownership of the lines after a given time. He brought suits to prevent any franchise on less favorable terms. After a bitter controversy, continuing until 1907, a new franchise was made, the service was greatly improved and the companies paid the city more than $25,000,000 for the use of its streets, and the so called, "Ninety-nine year act," franchise was invalidated by the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. Harding was a member of the Chicago Historical Society, the Union League, Saracen, Literary and Chicago Athletic Clubs. He was married Nov. 7, 1853 to Adelaide, daughter of Reuben Matthews (an English family, who settled in Durham, N. H. in 1638, was the first Matthews in this country, named Francis Matthews).

ARTICLE FROM MONMOUTH, ILL. DAILY REVIEW

YOUNG HARDING WAS LOST AT SEA.

Namesake of Late General A. C. Harding, disappeared with vessel in gulf.

A letter just received here from Mrs. George F. Harding of Evanston tells of the mysterious death at sea of her grandson, Abner

Harding, the namesake of the late General A. C. Harding, who will be remembered by many older citizens. The young man engaged passage for Santiago, Cuba, on a Norwegian vessel from New Orleans last September and shortly after the ship entered the Gulf from the mouth of the Mississippi it disappeared and no trace of it has ever been found. Mrs. Harding writes of the tragedy as follows:

"It may not be generally known that a great grandson and namesake of Gen. A. C. Harding of Monmouth, enlisted in the United States navy early in the late great war, and was for a short time at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station. He loved the sea, had been around the world, and in South America a number of times; had served as assistant engineer on a ship of the United Fruit Co. plying between New Orleans and South America. For a long period the Great Lakes Naval Training Station was a show place near Chicago, there being 46,000 jackies there at one time. Hundreds of people went out to see our boys in their white duck suits and it was a beautiful sight.

The commandant soon sent Abner to Newport News, where he taught the boys engine-room service. Later he served on a United States destroyer, on the Atlantic coast and was working in that capacity when the armistice came. Last summer he visited his family in their cottage in Michigan City, where he saw much of his aunt Susan Harding Rummler, who, with her family, occupied a cottage nearby. He was a big, handsome fellow with high ideals of duty to our country. When September came, tiring of inactivity, he set out for South America. When he reached New Orleans there was no ship of the United Fruit Co. service sailing, but that company had chartered a Norwegian ship named the Preston, to go to Santiago de Cuba. It was but a four days journey and Abner preferred the sea to waiting on land for the vessel he sought, started on that trip. The Preston sailed Sept. 9th. On the morning of September 10th, she was sighted by the signal station as she passed from the Mississippi River out into the Gulf of Mexico. The ship was never seen or heard of again. She was a good vessel and had a wireless apparatus, but she was in a region of terrific storms.

Abner served his country faithfully and well as long as she had need of him, but at the last moment, Destiny deprived him of the privilege of illustration the Latin proverb—"Dulce et decorum patric mori," (It is sweet to die for one's country.)"

THE ANCIENT AND HONORABLE ARTILLERY COMPANY OF MASS.

The history of the Honorable Artillery Company of old England can be traced through the fierce struggle which has gradually changed the unwritten British Constitution. The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of New England is also a living link between generations past and present, and has outlived every institution, except the Christian Church and the Public Schools, which were in existence on the American continent, when it was chartered. The members of each of these honorable companies have a right to be proud of their tradition, as the brave and patriotic deeds of one generation became the precious heritage of the next, growing in interest and value as time wears on. These train-bands were organized like those which existed in London, since the reign of Henry III.

In one of them in a mighty storm, a lusty man called John Howland coming upon some occasion above the gratings was with the seel (rool or pitching) of the ship thrown into the sea, but it pleased God that he caught hold of the topsail halliards, which hung overboard, and ran out at length. McCAIN FAMILY

The McCain family record is as follows in births, HUGH MCCAIN was born in Antrim County, Ireland in 1729. He was an officer under Washington at Braddock's defeat. Soon after the war of 1756, he moved to Mecklenberg (now Union) County, North Carolina. He died on August 26, 1821.

His home was where Bob Simpson now lives on Cane Creek. At this place when Cornwallis was coming through the Waxhaws, a party of British troops came to the house of Hugh McCain, and demanded of him all the money he had, which was said to have been a considerable amount for a backwoodsman. He refused to deliver it, as any man would have done, who did not want to enrich the enemies of his country, and the soldiers hanged him to a nearby walnut tree. There he would have died, had it not been for one of his cargo slaves, who upon the soldier's immediately leaving, ran to his master's rescue and cut him down. The old man had nearly choked to death, but came to and lived till 1821.

The descendants of Hugh McCain, Sr. through eight generations, have gone into the many thousands in numbers and have settled in every state, pretty much, in the union. Members of this family have colonized in Georgia, Tennessee, South Carolina and other southern states, besides North Carolina, and have gone west to the Pacific coast. Thousands of this large family connection took active and gallant parts in the civil war and since then many members have been prominent in other walks of life. From the time that Hugh McCain Sr. member of the Anson Guards, and Hugh McCain Jr. served Mecklenburg, members of the family have taken leading parts in the life of Charlotte and of North Carolina at large.

Hugh McCain married a Miss Jane Davis, a niece of Gen. Andrew Pickens, and they pitched their tent on the east bank of the Catawba river at Landsford, now known as the Foster Mill place. They lived there only one year on account of Indian hostility. They were forced to flee for their lives and moved eastward up the Landsford road to the place now known as the John Neely place, and remained there two years, suffering many hardships and privations. Here they had skirmishes with the Indians and had to flee, still moving eastward up the Landsford road to the old Potter road. Then they turned southward, going into the rich valleys of the Cain Creek and as soon as they crossed the creek, they located on the hilltop where Bob Simpson now lives not far from Unity. A.R.P. church, and near the South Carolina line. They lived in peace and harmony there, blessed with prosperity on every hand. There they flourished like a green bay tree, rearing a large and intelligent family of boys and girls, and accumulated huge sums of money for a backwoodsman in that day and time.

But alas, during the Revolution, his four sons volunteered and fought valiantly. With his sons in the army and no banking facilities, he decided to bury his money between the creek and the house, and he was very old and could not protect it.

At the close of the war, about the day before Cornwallis men came back up the Potter road, a band of Tories who had heard of his wealth, came along and found him under a walnut tree, close to the creek. They captured him and demanded his money, but he refused to deliver it. They threatened to hang him. "I would rather suffer the tortures of the Britons, and die a martyr's death on the walnut tree, than to surrender the gold I have earned by the sweat of my own brow. I have no desire to enrich the enemies of my country."

Then they tied his hands behind his back, ran a noose around his neck and pulled him up, then let him down and told him if he would lead them to the gold, they would turn him loose. If not they would finish him the next time. Still he refused and they pulled him up again and tied the rope to a bush and let him dangle in the air. Soon old "Tener," the old mammy servant, and her two sons caught on to the situation and hurried to the scene, screaming at the top of their voices. The Tories thinking it was Cornwallis men, fled from the scene.

Tener and her boys cut the old man down and carried him to the house. He rallied and lived some years, but on account of the pressure of the rope on his spinal cord he never regained consciousness. No one, so far as we know, has ever found the gold, although many searches have been made. The old pioneer died at the ripe old age of 93, leaving a great many descendants behind him. There are over 2,000 of them living in the Carolina today.

GEORGE WILLARD, younger brother of Major Simon Willard was baptized Dec. 4, 1614 at Horsmonden, Kent England. He came to New England as early as 1638, and perhaps at the same time, as his older brother in 1634. We find no record of him anywhere in the colony till the winter of 1638-39, when he was one of the citizens of Scituate, Mass. where he took the Oath of Allegiance on Feb. 1, 1639. He removed to Maryland, where in the land records at Baltimore on Jan. 9, 1652 George Willard demandeth 200 acres of land for transporting himself and Samuel and Daniel his sons, and John Rele his servant. He purchased land in Nottingham, Maryland. The records of Maryland have been searched in vain for any other token of him till after his decease. Then the probate records have the following in the Annals of the year 1656: "Whereas George Willard deceased, is indebted by account unto William Stevens the summe of one hundred pounds of tobacco. It is ordered that the said debt be satisfied out of the estate of the said George Willard deceased."
